

You say to me with quiet
You say to me with fear You choose to say nothing Your eyes they speak clear

I'm on the road with silence I'm on the road with hate I can't call you tonight I don't think this is fate

at the pier
we'll talk
we'll speak
of lust

at the pier
your mind
your heart
is one

You wonder where we're going You wonder what's beyond You skip a stone on water You wish you held a wand

I watch your every motion I watch your hands shake I squat in a small puddle I wish I had more strength

at the pier
we'll talk
we'll speak
of lust

at the pier
your mind
your heart
is one

October moon
brightens the face
your cheekbones, your chin my brow, my lips

Water laps stone
wind shifts west

the city to the east
your hand on my chest

You search my face for answers
I touch your lips in reply You tilt your head slowly I search your mind's eye

We dance inside the water
We travel deep inside
We rise and fall and rise and fall We breathe as one tonight

at the pier
we'll talk
we'll speak
of lust

at the pier
your mind
is one
