

Change Your Life

You followed your friends until they went on home then You followed some strangers 'cause you didn't want to feel alone

You stayed 'til they made you leave not the last time you'll do that You wandered those small hour streets wishing you could shake your dunce cap the past is dead so they say the future's new everyday a pathetic man

doesn't have to lose
but you gotta do something and you gotta start (right) now you must change your life...
...but not today

You get up everyday before the sun does rise You spend fifty-five minutes in a car and you have no idea why

You hear your voice talking about things like margins, gross, and debt You remember back in college swearing you'd never be one of them

the past is dead so they say
the future's new everyday
a pathetic man
but you gotta do something
and you gotta start (right) now
you must change your life...
...but not today

How did I get here when did yellow bricks turn to gold?
Why have I stayed here too scared to go it alone?

You stand on that final ledge three decades in two weeks You wish there was a redo button but your laptop only has delete

You remember when you were a golden boy exploring new worlds in your backyard You smile and realize nostalgia only makes happiness feel too far away

the past is dead so they say
the future's new everyday
a pathetic man
but you gotta do something
and you gotta start (right) now
you must change your life...
...but not today
